WINNIPEG, June 11.

The grand lodge of Masons is in session here.

J. McInnis, ex-M. P., has been appointed warden of Kingston penitentiary.

Newspapers everywhere in Canada are filled with nothing else but election news.

Rev. Dr. Gordon, formerly of Knox church Winnipeg, has been elected moderator of the Presbyterian general assembly.

Laurier's Ontario tour has been one of unparalleled success. On Tuesday he addressed 14,000 people amid unbounded enthusiasm.

Great interest is manifested in Winnipeg in territorial contests. Ex-Mayor Macdonald said yesterday in an interview that Oliver was certain of election in Alberta.

The general expectation in Winnipeg is that Martin's majority will run into four figures. Hugh John Macdonald may accept nomination in another constituency if arrangement can be made for the retirement of the conservative candidate.

Red Deer, June 11.

The minister of the interior addressed Red Deer voters Tuesday noon at the station supporting Cochrane's candidature. Good attendance, but no enthusiasm. Oliver held meetings at Springvale in the afternoon and Red Deer at night. Meetings were addressed by Nolan for Cochrane. Both meetings strongly in favor of Oliver. Cochrane's Innisfail meeting Monday night was addressed by Nolan for Cochrane and Chappell, Ross and Smith for Oliver. Meetings were two to one in favor of Oliver. Meeting at Leduc to-night, Oliver and Nolan will speak.

TODAY'S TRAIN.

One car merchandise for various parties, one car lime for K. A. Macleod, one car flour for Larve & Picard, one car shingles for Fraser.

LOCAL.

J. C. Gordon, of Manawan, is in town.

V. H. Mott rode in last night from Buffalo Lake.

John Ross of Saddle Lake agency came in with T. P. Wadsworth.

Judge Scott will resume the sitting of the Supreme Court on the 23rd inst.

M. McCauley leaves on Monday to follow F. P. Tims and J. B. Smith in Mr. Oliver's interests.

The report in this issue of the BULLETIN of Mr. Macdonald's political affairs needs no bolstering.

Rev. G. W. Dean has been elected president of the Methodist conference for the ensuing year.

The Herald says Hugh John Macdonald "came all the same, he saw and"—but was it he that conquered?

D. J. Goggin will lecture on "The Newer Patriotism" in Robertson Hall to-morrow night. Admission free.

T. G. Lander returned from the Landing last night having completed the enumeration of the voters there. He has about 40 names on the list.

The old Masonic hall in the Taylor block now used as Oliver's committee rooms is open all day and farmers and their wives are cordially invited to use the hall when visiting town.

This Northwest Territories Gazette announces the appointment of H. L. McInnis of Edmonton, as a commissioner for taking affidavits. W. C. Gillis, of Victoria, resigns as issuer of marriage licenses.

T. P. Wadsworth has returned from his tour amongst the agencies along the river and reports everything looking satisfactory. At Saddle Lake there is a shortage of seed grain, but everything else looks promising.

F. DeLesseert arrived on Monday's train from Switzerland. He is going on a five month's trip to the head waters of the Athabasca under the guidance of C. G. Cowan and will hunt big game in that district.

At the council meeting on Tuesday evening Messrs. Cowie, Edmiston, Kully and the mayor were present. Several communications were read and dealt with. The opinion of the town solicitor that it would be illegal for the council to make a grant of money for the July sports, resulted in a motion refusing aid in accordance with that opinion.

JAMES GRAY who left here last January returned last Monday after visiting the states of Alabama and Arkansas. He has not found any place preferable to this district and intends to settle here if his health holds good. Farmers in the states he visited are not so well off as they are here, and though the climate is much milder there he thinks Alberta is preferable as a place of residence for many reasons.

C. SANDISON returned from Roseland B. C. on Monday's train. He has taken a half interest in four mining locations. He thinks there will be big money made there in gold mining, but at present, though there is plenty of work to be done, there are lots of men to do it, and unless a man has money he would have a poor show there. Many men are out of work at the present time, and the reports coming from the district should be taken at the value such reports deserve.

There is no necessity to "cringe" a pledge from Mr. Oliver regarding the division of the constituency. It is known he will do his best to attain it. The fact is there was no division amongst the liberals. They were and are unanimous in their support of Mr. Oliver, and have sufficient confidence in him to allow him to sit the full term. Mr. Oliver's speeches and address contain the only straightforward policy yet announced, and he has not swerved a single point from the platform he held down at the first campaign meeting he held. The Herald knows only too well that any "explanations" of sanguine assertions will have to come from its side of the fence after election day.

It is illegal to wear party badges, colors or favors during the last eight days before election day.

A RALLY of the Young Albertans club which he held at 8 o'clock Saturday night in the hall. Don't fail to be there.

W. B. STANBURY returned on Monday from Wetaskiwin where he went on a fur buying trip and secured about $700 worth of fur.

A. E. FORTER is building a ferris wheel which he will operate on the show ground on Dominion day. It will be about 28 feet high and have four cars.

For Sale: M. J. Macleod, Lacombe, to W. B. Stennett, $50.15; Wm. Macdonnell & Co., Wetaskiwin, to W. B. Stennett, $725.00; E. Laboumme, Battle River, Lot No. 1 to J. Reipinger, $175.65; Lot No. 2 to James Walsh, $180.25; D. Cadzow, Grand Rapids, to James Walsh, $40.50.

INNISFAIL.

Mr. Oliver held a meeting here on Friday evening at 8 o'clock. J. A. Macleod, who was his principal antagonist, and brought up his ancient history once more. His theories and expectations were numerous and amusing, but not to the point. Mr. Oliver stuck to facts and results, and the conclusions were most forcible—even crushing. One point he made was rather amusing. He showed while the representatives of Mr. Cochrane claimed that he was a "flat footed" party man, and held him up to admiration as anything but the miserable "Independent" liberal. Mr. Oliver—yet Cochrane himself in his election address stated that he wishes to be independent in Northwest matters. It is indeed fortunate that he will never be in a position to find, that fact. Oliver is a true conservative nomination, and direct governmental and cabinet support, his independence (Save the mark!) would be about as forced a growth as hen's teeth or bread from stones. Mr. Oliver also threw a lurid light upon Mr. Cochrane's written pledge to retire in two years, in order that northern and southern conservatives might have a chance of putting local men in his place. The only other speaker was Mr. Freeman, who was not a success. He tried to convince the audience that the Crow's Nest Railway would cut C. P. R. rates, but failed signally in the attempt. He then frantically waved the "old flag," which happens to be as much the property of one party as of another, and he then reverently announced that a gentleman bearing the sacred name of Macdonald—the hon. minister of the interior, would appear on Monday's train. We do not think that Mr. Macdonald has any more right at present to the title "Honorable," than he has to that of "M. P.," but no matter, Mr. Macdonald will find it hard to reconcile all the different statements which have been made with regard to the government policy on the school question and others, and he will find that the people of Alberta have been taught severe lessons in a hard school; that they are sick of protection of manufacturers at the expense of the farming community; of systematic corruption and of a privileged railway monopoly, and that they will vote accordingly. The meeting was a large one, and was strongly in favor of Mr. Oliver, whose vote in this polling division will certainly be not less than two to one.

LACOMBE LINKS.

Rev. E. J. Cheving in is in Winnipeg attending conference. We are informed that he is on the stationing committee.

G. A. Reid, our hardware merchant, went east on last Tuesday's train. He will attend the general assembly of the Presbyterian church which is held in Toronto, as representative from this field. He will also go to Galt and Montreal and expects to be away about five weeks.

We had a very heavy rainfall on Friday night and Saturday morning causing larger streams and more water in the low places than even the oldest settlers remember having seen.

On account of the heavy rains the trails in many places are in a bad shape, but the crops are doing fine.

The Hardware and Metal Journal says: In the campaign that is now upon us in Canada there is a demand for practical, common sense business men. It is most imperative that the demands which are being made, for ever practical business men were needed in the parliament of Canada it will be in the next parliament, no matter whether conservative or reformers predominate therein. There are questions looming up which affect the future destiny of this country which only men of high intelligence and men of practical business common-sense are competent to solve. Send this class of men to parliament—it matters not whether they be grit or tory—and it is not likely there will be any suffering of the country's interests. Vote for business men.

The conservative plan of campaign is to get enough co-ercionists in Quebec and enough "antia" in Ontario elected to give Tupper an excuse for holding power. Then the factions at Ottawa will be allowed to fight it out, and if the "antia" win there will be a "reconstruction" understood, but not pledged to coercion. This simply means that there will be confusion and disturbance all summer, and that public business will have to wait until the factions are done quarrelling. This intention to "let them fight it out at Ottawa" is a swindle with very little attempt at concealment, so that if the electors choose to vote for political chaos and anarchy they will do so with their eyes open, and they will have themselves to blame. A vote for Laurier means a vote for factional party, thoroughly agreed upon a policy which will take the school question out of federal politics and allow parliament and the government to attend to their proper business, the extension of trade, the reduction of debts and taxation, and the development of the West. A vote for Laurier is a vote for business, a vote for Tupper is a vote for factional politics.

THE CAMPAIGN.

VISIT OF THE MINISTER OF THE INTERIOR.
—OLIVER SCORES AT EVERY POINT.

Monday's train brought in the Hon. Hugh John Macdonald, minister of the interior, to support the government candidate, T. B. H. Cochrane. On the journey from Calgary the train was stopped at several points to allow the visitor to address the electors. The first stop was at Olds where Mr. Macdonald spoke for about 15 minutes to a crowd of about 100 people, who listened to him in silence, but as soon as he boarded the train at the close of his speech they raised three lusty cheers for Frank Oliver.

At Innisfail the hon. gentleman spoke from the conservative committee rooms to a moderately large crowd for a few minutes. His remarks created no enthusiasm and the audience made no demonstration in his favor.

At Wetaskiwin he made a third speech to a large audience who also received his remarks in silence, but raised three hearty cheers for Oliver at the close of Hugh John's address.

The train reached South Edmonton on time. This place Mr. Cochrane told the Calgary conservatives was with him almost to a man. There had been great preparations made to welcome the minister of the interior. The band played in a bandstand close to the depot. The conservative hotel bus from the north side was decorated in blue and a few blue badges were dotted here and there. When the train stopped the band struck up, and on the appearance of Mr. Oliver he was greeted with cheer upon cheer. Cochrane and the minister mounted the bandstand where Mr. Maclean, president of the South Edmonton conservative association, took the chair. Mr. Cochrane made a few remarks and was followed by Hon. Hugh John Macdonald. At the close of Mr. Macdonald's speech a call was made for Mr. Oliver who was in the audience. The chairman explained that the arrangements would not admit of a speech from Mr. Oliver as there was not time, but the crowd persisted and determinedly called for Oliver who mounted the bandstand when the other party left it and spoke for about five minutes, the assembly manifesting the utmost enthusiasm.

A procession of conveyances then started for Edmonton where the band was stationed on the hill above the ferry landing and played selections as the party ascended the hill. A procession was formed in which about 50 persons besides the band, took part. In their midst the Canadian flag was carried. Rain had fallen during the afternoon and the procession proceeded along the sidewalk, the vehicles containing the candidate and his friends running abreast of it. The curling rink had been elaborately decorated with mottoes and evergreens. A large number of ladies were on the platform, where Fathers Lacombe, Ledou and Morin and ministers of other denominations also sat. The chair was taken by V. S. Edmonson, president of the Edmonton liberal-conservative association, at about 9 o'clock. The audience numbered about 500 composed of electors of Edmonton and the surrounding settlements.

Dr. H. C. Wilson, the mayor, was the first speaker called and said he was proud to appear on the platform with the minister of the interior. Mr. Oliver's "tariff for revenue" was a protective tariff but his leader says "we want free trade in England." At Stoney Plain a speaker said it was not part of the liberal policy to do away with the duty on pork or oats or any of the farmers' produce. He challenged Mr. Oliver to come forth and support it. Mr. Oliver appealed to the people of Edmonton as an Edmonton man (loud cheers) in this campaign to protect the interests of Edmonton. He wondered if he said that at Macleod and Calgary. It proves that Mr. Oliver had a forlorn hope (derisive cheers) Mr. Oliver told them in no line with the general appeal of the liberal party. There was no policy that liberals were agreed upon. They had a policy for each province and each country, but it remained for Mr. Oliver to initiate a policy for every section of Alberta. The speaker then held up some papers which he said were affidavits of P. J. Nolan and Mr. Cochrane denying that Mr. Cochrane had used certain remarks about Catholics here, and mentioned Mr. Prince's name as having stated such remarks were made. Mr. Prince came forward but was not asked to the platform.

T. B. H. Cochrane, the conservative candidate, said he would not detain them long because they had before them the minister of the interior who had come on his asking to help him from the city where he supposed there would be the biggest fight in all Canada. He had come to help him and would speak there and at other places in favor of the conservative policy. When Mr. Macdonald was speaking at South Edmonton the dominion press in no uncertain words his policy as he would tell them that evening on the school question, and there was no doubt about it, but that he (the speaker) was of the same opinion. He need not go into details on this subject and when the minister explained it as he so thoroughly could, they could rest assured that he (the speaker) would back him if he had the honor to be returned, in every possible way that he could. He would now leave the platform to Mr. Hugh Macdonald, who would speak for an hour and then Mr. Oliver for an hour.

H. H. Robertson, secretary of the Edmonton liberal conservative association, then read an address of welcome to the Hon. Hugh John Macdonald. The address mentioned as measures which the government should aid and support, the Hudson's Bay railroad, the British Pacific railway, the developing of the natural waterways, the granting of scrip to the half breeds, the extension of postal and customs facilities, extension of telegraph to the north, continuation of boring operations for coal oil, wagon road to the Cariboo, and the Edmonton district railway.

Hon. Hugh John Macdonald, who was received with cheers said it gave him great pleasure to receive such an address. Although that was his first visit to Edmonton as a minister of the crown, it was not his first visit as he was here in 1887. It was then he had for the first time the pleasure of meeting Mr. Oliver's acquaintance. There were several things in the address which called for some remarks. Regarding that portion of the address referring to the Hudson's Bay Railroad he could only say that as far as he was concerned as minister of the interior he would have his hearty support. Regarding the other two railroads his faithful efforts would be made to back them to the best of his ability. As to the development of transportation facilities on the water highways, the coal oil tests, and the opening up of the Cariboo country, they were mainly new to him except the coal oil tests. He might say he had received that day a letter from the Edmonton board of trade which referred very much to the same subject. They asked for provision should be made for a geological survey of this country, mainly with a view to find out what coal oil deposits there were. Though he had not yet had an opportunity of answering that letter he could pledge himself to have that done, for it was of the utmost interest to all that Northwest country to find out where coal oil in paying quantities existed in their land. He had no hesitation in telling them that the Edmonton district railroad would have the strongest support of the present government. That was all that he could say in reply to the address. Coming as he did from Manitoba where the school question (which ought not to be an issue in this election) is a burning question, they might possibly wish to hear something from him on that subject.

Mr. Oliver was here called to the platform amid tremendous cheering from the audience.

Mr. Macdonald continuing said that the school question originated as they were aware in certain clauses of the Manitoba act which was the constitution of that province. There were two clauses in that act relating to education. In the first of those clauses provision was made that any rights to separate schools enjoyed by Roman Catholics or protestants by law or custom before Manitoba became a province, the provincial legislature would have no power to take away those rights. The other clause provided that if subsequent to the admission of Manitoba into confederation the provincial legislature introduced a system of separate schools which injuriously affected any minority such minority should have the right to appeal to the governor-general in council and the parliament of Canada for redress. In 1871 at the first session of the legislature of Manitoba an act was passed establishing a system of Roman Catholic separate schools. In 1890 another act was passed abolishing that system and establishing a system of what is called national schools. That formed the basis of the school question, when the act was then passed a history of the Barrett appeal case. The decision in which was in favor of the act of 1890 and against separate schools. Continuing he said that when that decision was given he was more than pleased because he had always been in favor of and who now as a matter of policy and a matter of choice, of national schools. Not because he wished to trample on the rights of his Roman Catholic fellow citizens, but because on national grounds it was better to have their children Roman Catholic and Protestant brought up together so that they might get rid of many of the erroneous ideas which they held towards each other. He was so strongly in favor of national schools that when he was in the House of Commons he rose in his place speaking with the responsibility of the member Winnipeg on his shoulders and said that if any interference was made with the school system of Manitoba he would vote want of confidence in the government if it continued such interference. But the matter did not stay there and does not stay there now. The Roman Catholics filed a petition in the name of Mr. Brophy applying to the governor-general in council for remedial legislation in regard to the school law as mentioned in the Manitoba act. It was appealed through the various courts to the judicial committee of the Imperial privy council. Mr. Macdonald referred to the decision of the committee and read it at some length. He thought that the decision was given that the ground on which he thought he had stood had disappeared. At that time he was a private citizen and had no desire to enter political life again and he only entered it when Sir Charles Tupper appealed to him to come to his aid as he had aided his (the speaker's) father. He stated his opinion then and he stated it now, that he believed that if the province of Manitoba refused to grant any relief to the Roman Catholics in minority, and the appeal which has been made to the people of Canada and against her, as he believed it would, he did not see how he could do otherwise than support legislation to give such relief. He did not say he would support any legislation, but he did say that if Manitoba refuses to act in the matter, the grievance must be constitutionally remedied. This he had no doubt in his own mind that this question would never again come before the dominion of Canada. He believed that no matter which side was victorious it will be settled between the Dominion and provincial governments, and that nothing like remedial legislation will ever be passed by the Dominion of Canada. That was his opinion. The dominion press who were in Winnipeg came as near agreeing as any two bodies of men could come without actually agreeing. But there were other questions. There was the material development of the west and he thought that with Sir Charles Tupper as premier the west would get a greater share of whatever was going than under any other premier. The office he (the speaker) held had sought him, he had not sought it, and he told Sir Charles that he had found it was impossible to get from the government that measure of support for Northwest enterprises which he (the speaker) thought they deserved. He tried when in the house to get what he thought they were entitled to and beyond a grant of $80,000 a year to aid the construction of the Hudson's Bay Railroad they had got nothing, so finding he could do no good there he resigned, and left no one to take his place. He reminded Sir Charles of this and told him it would be absolutely useless to return to politics unless a different state of things were introduced. Sir Charles promised specifically that the H. B. R. and Crow's Nest-Pass road would be supported, and that looks would be built at St. Andrews rapids on Red River. If Sir Charles or his government failed to carry out the pledges he had made he would at once find himself without a minister of the interior in the parliament would be written as soon as he could put pen to paper. He did not see how he could take a stronger position than that. (Loud applause.)

Mr. Frank Oliver, the independent liberal candidate, then rose and received such an ovation of cheers that it was some minutes before he could speak. He said: Ladies and gentlemen: It is with a great deal of pleasure and I may say of pride that I stand before you to-night, because we have here the honorable minister of the interior. It is an honor to have him address us in this hall of the Northwest. I am sure we are glad to hear him for many reasons, and one is because he comes speaking with authority as to the policy of the government, which is the question at issue in this crisis, more than the men who happen to be candidates. (Laughter and applause.) I have been before the people in different parts of this constituency in different parts at very short intervals, and in chasing after a knowledge of this policy I have done some very hard traveling and listened to long talks, and this is the first time I have been able to get it into a corner. (Applause.) Now we know what it is, and I will say more particularly what it is not. (Applause.) The first subject which I heard the honorable minister of the interior speak of was the school question, and I am sure we are highly indebted to him for his very full, careful, and I have no doubt accurate history of it. It is not altogether a question of what is the history of the question. History is sometimes a very long and tedious thing, I understood from the honorable minister that he is strongly in favor of national schools. Then I understood that he was in favor of remedial legislation. Then I think I understood that he was in favor of saying nothing by means of a commission, and finally I think he read us the decision of the privy council, which being interpreted was something to the effect that there is no school question at all. (Loud applause.) I think we are most fortunate in our minister of the interior and that he had done for us, exactly what we want done in regard to this particular case. His explanation reminds me of a story I heard of Garibaldi who visited England and Lord Palmerston thought as he might become something of a Napoleon it would be good policy to find him an English wife. The difficulty was that Garibaldi was married, but Lord Palmerston said "We will send Mr. Gladstone to explain her away." Now we have had the school question explained away, and I suppose that I need not refer to it at all. But while that explanation is all right for the minister of the interior perhaps I am not so good at explaining as he is and it is a hard thing to explain and explain away, and I suppose that I need not refer to it at all. It is not so much what is the history of the question, as what are the facts of the case, and not so much the facts as you are going to do about it. I said one evening here that I would be glad to support the policy of the government on this question if I knew what it was. The honorable minister said in Winnipeg that this was a question to be decided by conciliation and that was the course he would favor. Now this is something more than a question of the favor of the honorable minister. He is bound as a minister by the actions of the government and it is not what he will favor but what he will do with the question. The postmaster-general said before 20,000 people in Montreal on May 15, that the remedial bill would be reintroduced and carried if it took from fall to spring to do it. If that is the policy of the government I am afraid we will have to say the explanation of our minister is not the correct one. (Applause.) The question at issue is the policy of the government, not a matter of the opinion of its different members. We have a minister here and as electors we want to know whether the postmaster-general or the minister of the interior more correctly state the government policy. We want to see decided right here and now. (Applause.) It is an important question and must be settled honorably and fairly to all concerned or it will not be settled at all. (Hear, hear.) In discussing the school question I am proposed by the proposition contained in the remedial bill I have simply this to say, that these provisions are not only not according to the judgment of the privy council, they were unnecessary, were unjust an interference with the rights of the province, and should not be supported in parliament. In taking that stand I follow the leader of the opposition. (Cheers.) He declared against the bill, not some theoretical bill, but the bill mentioned by the postmaster-general. That is the bill I object to as not being a settlement of the question. As I have said before I agree with the policy of conciliation as outlined by the minister of the interior if that is the policy of the government, although I am not a supporter of the government. That has been the policy of the leader of the opposition ever since this question arose. Their policy as you know has been a policy of conciliation as opposed to the policy of coercion and I stand here to-night as a supporter of the policy of conciliation which I will be glad to assist the minister of the interior in carrying out, and I stand just as opposed to the remedial bill, whether brought in by this government or anybody else. (Applause.) It is a question before the country and a candidate should be perfectly clear and be prepared to take the consequences of his position. I ask the government and their candidates to do as I am doing. Take a certain position and stand by the consequences whatever they may be. It was glad to hear the conditions on which the minister of the interior entered the government and I think we will all agree that we can put full trust in his honor and integrity. So far so good. When he went to parliament for Winnipeg some years ago he went to do the best he could for his constituents. He was unable to perform what he felt the country should have and, like the worthy son of a worthy sire, he resigned, which showed him to be an honorable man. I am afraid under present circumstances a like course will produce a like result. You will excuse me for saying that is not what we are after in this contest. (Applause.) We are not discussing the personal policy of the minister of the interior. I only refer to this because it has been alluded to. When the minister of the interior resigned from parliament he was succeeded by a gentleman who was in opposition to the government, and the question arises, was the constituency more benefited by the minister's term or that of his successor. Regarding the former he himself has told you the result. As regards the latter it seems that it was really the election of an opposition member for Winnipeg that caused, to a very great extent, the honoring of the city by the appointment of the minister of the interior. So after all there was a certain substantial benefit accrued to the city by the election of Mr. MacDonald's successor. There is another point which Mr. MacDonald referred to today, though he omitted it here, and I am sure that it was necessary in the interests of the city and district that the representation should be in sympathy with the government. We will agree that while Mr. MacDonald represented it, it was well represented and by a supporter of the government. He has himself told you the result. (Applause.) We have been represented in Alberta by a sympathizer of the government, and while certain substantial benefits accrued to the members at the end of the term, the benefits to the constituency have yet to be acquired. I find that the feeling in the constituency is that it has been neglected, and the general feeling is that it is time for a change in the method of representation. (Applause.) We may not by our votes in Alberta change the government, but we certainly can change the method of representation, so that if we do not have the sympathy of the government we can command its respect. (Applause.) I would be very sorry to think that this constituency would do away with the principle of free government by electing a supporter of the government merely for the sake of having one in sympathy with the government. (Hear, hear.) There is one point in regard to the promise for western development. We have been promised the Hudson's Bay Railway and Crow's Nest Pass Railway, the lack at St. Andrew's rapids, but we have not been promised that these works would relieve the Territories of the monopoly in railways. (Cheers.) We want development by these roads and we want it by another road—the British Pacific. What we want more than the roads is the breaking of the present monopoly. To build these roads to strengthen the monopoly would be no benefit to the Territories. I did not hear anything in regard to any change in the protective tariff so that the farmers of this country, if the tariff does not raise the prices of their produce will reduce the prices of what they have to buy as far as possible. If we cannot raise the prices of farm produce we can certainly get down the prices of farm supplies. I believe it was said in the past that I had made special appeals to the people of Edmonton for their support. I do not know in what the appeals consisted. If it was pledging myself to the interests of Edmonton before those of any other portion of the constituency I beg to withdraw the pledge. But I did not make such a promise and I don't have to withdraw it. (Cheers.) I have been over the constituency which is itself a country and have spoken all over of the people's interests and have said to my best to get what they required. I have done so in Edmonton, this metropolis of the north, whose commercial interests extend to the Arctic ocean, and I say to you people of Edmonton that whatever services I am able to do you by reason of my special knowledge of your requirements and the resources of this part of the country, I will do as for myself, and I ask you is that to be charged against me before an Edmonton audience? (No, no, and applause.) I make no pledge to you that I do not make to the electors of any other part of the district. You know me better and I know you better. (Loud cheers.)

THE CAMPAIGN.

A request was handed in asking the candidates to pledge themselves regarding prohibition. Mr. Oliver was about to speak but the audience called loudly for Cochrane who had called the meeting. He came forward and said "gentlemen, I have been called upon to answer this question. I can only say that I like my grog myself." (Loud derisive cheers.)

Mr. Oliver amid cheers said he had had one answer which he had given all his life, he had never voted against prohibition and he never would. (Loud and prolonged cheers.)

Hon. H. J. MacDonald replied to Mr. Oliver but said nothing new. He remarked that he was glad to know he would have Mr. Oliver's support in a policy of conciliation on the school question and was sure that support would be valuable. Whenever candidate Alberta returned he was sure the successful one would do his best for Alberta. (Applause.)

The band played the national anthem and the audience waited a moment or two and then broke into enthusiastic cheers for Oliver and the Queen and the great meeting dispersed at a little after midnight.

BOWDEN.

Mr. Oliver addressed a large meeting here at about 3 o'clock. Those present were evidently there to hear and hear Mr. Oliver was followed by Mr. Muir of Calgary, speaking for Mr. Cochrane. During the course of the speaking Mr. Oliver and Mr. Muir came to distinctly antagonistic positions regarding some matters of ancient history and Mr. Muir's position was seen to have been a very mistaken one. At the close of the meeting a committee was formed to work for Mr. Oliver and was joined by the majority of those present. It was the opinion of numbers of the committee that Mr. Oliver was sure of a majority in Bowden while Mr. Oliver's opponents were sure that it would be about even up for each candidate. One gentleman after hearing both sides said: "Well I have been a conservative all my life and voted to make the change, but I'll vote for Oliver this trip. I'm sure he's just the man we want."

June 6, 1896.

PENHOLD.

Mr. Oliver had a grand meeting here on Friday afternoon. The local conservative are few and far between, but Mr. Muir, Q. C., was as usual, in evidence, and a strong party body-guard attended him from Innisfail. The meeting was very much in favor of Mr. Oliver and the district is certain to roll a 75 per cent vote against the played out party and the poverty stricken policy.

OLDS.

A large number gathered in this city to hear Mr. Oliver and Mr. Muir on the positions taken by the candidates for this constituency. Both gentlemen received an excellent hearing. Mr. Muir was bothered very much by a question propounded by one of the audience, and for which he could find no satisfactory answer. Mr. Oliver did splendidly leaving his opponent without any position on matters of controversy. The feeling of the meeting was decidedly in favor of Mr. Oliver and he gave him three rousing cheers as the meeting broke up. There is no doubt that Mr. Oliver stands well in these parts and his opponents know it, as is shown by their anxious and constant efforts to get and keep the good feeling of the surrounding country. A committee was formed on Monday and work is being pushed earnestly.
